VOTE! VOTE!

VOTE FOR AMENDMENT NUMBER FIFTEEN

It means a step toward a new Constitution that will represent the real heart and spirit of modern Missouri.

It means a step toward the leaving of our outgrown shell that has restricted our growth for the past generation.

It means freedom from the shackles that have handicapped us in our struggles for better schools, better roads, better health, better courts and a better State.

VOTE AND WORK FOR AMENDMENT NO. 15—

The Last On The Ballot

And do not forget number five. It gives the country people the right to educate their children better, if they want to. If this passes it is equivalent to the State's saying to the rural people, "You now have our permission to spend 100 cents out of each hundred dollars of your assessed valuation for the education of your children." Heretofore the country people have been treated like the idiotic child that cannot be entrusted with the spending of the money that belongs to it.

LET'S NOT CONTINUE THE INSULT!

EDITORIAL

Make those new acquaintances that will mean success to you in the future. Renew your old friendships. Hear the best talent in America on the latest educational thought. Line up with the best organized, the leading force in Missouri, working for better schools and all that better schools mean—The Missouri State Teachers Association.

The teacher who is a real teacher will be one to the community as well as to the pupils who sit in her classes. She cannot be all she should be to her pupils unless she is a citizen in the highest sense of that term, voting intelligently, exercising her newly acquired function in expressing her sentiments at the polls as regards the best men and the best measures.

Vote For No. 15 As to the men—political preferences and perhaps prejudices will determine most of our votes but there are measures that are not prejudiced by politics which the teacher can well afford to work actively for. Amendment number fifteen must challenge our pride and our patriotism. There is every reason for supporting it. No good reasons exist for opposing it. Yet there is danger in its being defeated along with others that perhaps need defeat. If each teacher can see twenty-five voters, men or women, and instruct them to scratch No and vote Yes on this one it will insure its passage.

There is another one that should by all means be carried, Amendment number five that gives to the rural district the right to levy 100 cts. on the hundred dollars valuation by a vote of the people. This is only giving to the country folk the same right that the town

Vote for No. 5 and city people have always had. Surely they are entitled to it. If you live in the city help your rural friends to be given the privilege of improving their schools if they want to. If you live in the country try to blot out the suggestion that is now in the constitution that farmers are incompetents who must be limited in the expenditure of their own money.

The County Unit

At the request of the Legislative Committee the revised County Unit Bill is printed in full in this issue of SCHOOL AND COMMUNITY. The present bill, while retaining all the valuable features of the one submitted two years ago, contains some new features and is free from all the valid objections made to the old bill.

Among the more important changes and additions, particular attention is called to the following:

First. The County district is made to include all common school districts or consolidated districts and all town districts. Sec. 1. Districts containing a city of the third class may be included in the county district. Sec. 44.

Second. The County district is for purposes of local administration, divided into subdistricts. These are formed on the sole basis of the needs and convenience of the children. Each sub-district will have one high school and as many one room schools as needed, placed where they are needed. Sections 15 and 25.

Third. The powers and duties of the sub-district board of trustees, as defined in Section 38 are a material change from the old law. Teachers can be employed only on the recommendation of the sub-district board and county superintendent. This gives the proper kind and amount of local control and relieves the county board of the drudgery of selecting teachers. The fifth division of Section 38 is new. On the basis of the annual budgets as prepared by the subdistrict board and filed in February, the county board will make its budget and submit its recommendations to the voters at the April election.

Fourth. Section 42 is new and under its provisions any county that really wants to do so can have good schools. The extra state aid will go to the county, not to the local district as at present. By the most careful study and investigation, it has been found that should every county eligible for state aid under this section should qualify, it would require $900,000 to carry out the provisions of this Act. This year the total amount of state aid, exclusive of teachers training and vocational education, is $470,892. This amount would, of course, be saved so that the maximum state aid in 1922 could not exceed more than $430,000 more than this year. This bill will repeal all existing aid laws except for teachers training and vocational education.

The present state aid laws are cumbersome, and faulty in many respects. They do not and cannot be made to equalize educational opportunities. In many cases they are very unfair, as the following tabulation will show:

Facts Bearing on a Suggested Plan of Distributing State Aid in Missouri by Counties

After levying 100 cents on the $100 assessed valuation, to have a revenue of $35.00 for each child in average daily attendance, fifty counties would need$981,518.02

After levying 100 cents on the $100 assessed valuation, sixty-four counties would have over $35 per child in average daily attendance to the amount of$3,040,666.55.

Yet these sixty-four counties received State aid in 1919-20 to the amount of....$231,618.95.

Practical Lessons in Thrift

By Savings Division of Eighth and Tenth Federal Reserve Districts

TO THE TEACHERS OF MISSOURI

The second installment of lesson outlines on Thrift appears in this issue of "The School and Community." These lessons are for the weeks of November 8, 15, 22 and 29.

It is intended for teachers to use each lesson as a basis for class work of the entire room at some period during the week indicated by the date at the beginning of the lesson. In some of the outlines one period may not give sufficient time to cover the work. If not, it is suggested that another period be given sometimes during the week to finish the outline.

Teachers should feel perfectly free to ask any questions or to make any suggestions in regard to the work. Those in the Eighth Federal Reserve District should address correspondence to D. W. Clayton, Savings Division, 415 Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo. Those in the Tenth Federal Reserve District, which includes nineteen counties along the western border of the state, should address correspondence to C. A. M. High, Savings Division, Federal Reserve Bank, Kansas City, Missouri.

AIM: To study the Budget System.

Procedure.

I. Arguments for Budget System.

(1) Sets definite limits of expenditures. (2) Affords a balance in expenditures. (3) Offers a business-like method of keeping accounts.

II. Sample of a budget for students.

III. Have pupils study this form suggested below and determine the essentials of a budget (viz)

(1) Provides for savings first. (2) Takes care of Christmas gifts, church dues, etc. (3) Provides for rational recreation.

IV. Have pupils prepare budgets adapted to their own needs, and practice keeping accurate account of expenditures.

Conclusion. The business of living demands the following of a carefully worked out budget through which the planning in advance of expenditures can be made.

Suggested Sample Form of Budget

SAVING OR CONSERVATION

Aim: To study the saving or conservation element of Thrift as applied to the Nation and as exemplified in industry.

Procedure.

I. The problem in the Nation.

(1) Our ever increasing consumption must be met by greater production and by conservation. (2) America has been wasteful in the past.

II. Conservation of natural resources.

(1) Scientific methods in farming. (2) Coal supply. (3) Forestry system. (4) Preservation of fish and game. (5) Flood prevention.

III. Conservation of life and property.

(1) Control of disease. (2) Prevention of war. (3) Fire prevention. (4) Prevention of accidents.

IV. Conservation of industry.

(1) Utilization of by-products. (2) Safety-first policy. (3) Production on a large scale. Conclusion. The problem in the nation demands a realization of our wastefulness, a conservation of our natural resources, a saving of our people's lives and property, and efficiency in our industry.

Lesson XI.

Week of November 22nd.

Aim: To show individual responsibility in the matter of conservation.

Procedure.

The student should learn to:

I. Conserve his health.

(1) Show the money value of health. (2) Show the moral responsibility in health conservation. (3) Good health promotes joy in living.

II. Save time.

(1) "Time is money." (2) Show the value of a schedule. (3) Importance of being prompt in keeping appointments to save time of others.

III. Conserve things.

(1) Public property. (2) Light in the house. (3) Clothes, tablets, books, other school supplies. (4) Canning of home garden products. (5) Waste paper, old newspapers and magazines.

Conclusion: An individual must recognize the true value of health, time and materials, and hold himself responsible for their conservation.

Lesson XII.

Week of November 29th

AIM: To show why everyone should save money.

Procedure.

I. For the inevitable "rainy day."

(1) There comes to most people a time when on account of age or disability their earning power decreases or ceases altogether. Saving now may provide for this period.

II. For emergencies.

(1) Financial losses. (2) Panics or periods of hard times. (3) Physical accidents and sickness. Sometimes the difference between prosperity and poverty may mean the difference between a specialist and a bungler in case of sickness or surgical operation, which may mean life in one instance or death in the other.

III. For opportunities.

(1) In buying a home, a farm or other valuable property. (2) Of going into business when some particularly good opening is seen. It takes money or good credit to do these things and these are the results of Thrift.

IV. Savings strengthens character.

(1) It inspires confidence in one's self to realize one can save. It gives self-reliance. (2) It gives one self-control to deny one's self some of the useless wants and to save for the future.

Conclusion. In order to have money for old age when the period of saving is over, to be ready for emergencies and to be prepared to take advantage of opportunities, it is necessary to save regularly during the years of earning. While doing this self-confidence, self-respect and self-control are developed, and these give a wholesome strength of character.

Homer Lawson Roberts

Teacher, Scientist, Friend

Homer Lawson Roberts, Professor of Biology in the Southeast Missouri State Teachers College and Chairman of the Executive Committee of the State Teachers Association was drowned on August 23 in Current River. The boat in which, accompanied by his wife, he had floated down from the headwaters of that beauti-the foot of a beautiful bluff—slept in the river he had loved and to which repeatedly he had gone for scientific research and recreation. There was, it would seem, an epic fitness in such a burial for this almost epic man, but loving hands brought him back to us to lie, as he had expected, on the slope across the valley westward from ful but uncertain Ozark stream, twelve miles below Eminence, was caught in a whirlpool and overturned. Mrs. Roberts was able to seize the boat as it swept past her and, clinging to it, reached shallow water some two hundred yards below. But he was held in the pool until he slept at the Teachers College.

The shock that the news of Mr. Roberts' death brought to his many friends cannot be explained by the unusual character of the accident or measured altogether by the extraordinary love and respect that he had commanded. Although his life had spanned sixty crowded and efficient years, it is hard yet to think of his work as finished or of his intrepid eagerness as ended. He did not belong to the past but to the living present and the future. He was always forward-looking. Again and again has it been said of him that he had the enthusiasm and the confidence of youth. Certainly no student in his classes was more ready for new adventure in science or literature or friendship. But his spirit transcended that of mere youth; it was more constant, more purposeful—the spirit of a constructive teacher. “Just a school teacher,” he was accustomed to call himself. Not just a teacher, indeed, but above all else a teacher and always progressive. He grew up as a boy in the heart of Fulton County, Illinois, the eldest child in a large family that made its way and kept its influence in Lewistown through character and wit and industry. It was, and still is, a remarkable family of distinct personalities, marked initiative, and high ambitions. Under such influences it is not surprising that Homer, while still only a boy, began teaching. He liked the school room from the start and he was successful. For over twenty years he continued teaching in that county of Illinois, being absent only when he was himself a student at the Illinois Normal School and at Indiana University and finally at Knox College. During most of these years he was Superintendent of Fulton county schools, first at Ipava and afterwards at Farmington and Canton. As a Superintendent he was known over the entire state for his high standards and his intelligent innovations.

His widest reputation deservedly came from his work as a teacher of the natural sciences, especially of Biology. During his memorable year at the University of Indiana the young man had come under the teaching of David Starr Jordan and from him had gained an understanding of the principles of modern science that gave direction to the rest of his life. He was a moving spirit in the organization of the Fulton County Scientific Club which brought together a remarkable group of men and contributed largely to the knowledge of fauna and flora in the Spoon River valley. He himself assisted in making many valuable collections and reports. But the best of his effort was given to his classes. He was a scientist second; a science teacher first. This emphasis is revealed in a statement recently published by Dr. W. S. Strobe, the dean of the Fulton Country Club and the first authority in America on fresh water mussels. Of Mr. Roberts he writes: “As a teacher, demonstrator, and scientist he had few equals and no superiors. . . . He had all knowledge in his chosen profession and a happy and convincing manner of presenting it to others and yet without ostentation.”

In 1907 he came to the Third Missouri Normal School at Cape Girardeau. Here at once he won a secure place in the confidence and the affection of colleagues and students.

The students found him always an exacting teacher and a very frank one, especially to slipshod indolence, but always sympathetic with real effort and inspiring with his amazing fund of knowledge and his enthusiasm for the subject he taught. And very many of them came to know him as a friend, wise in counsel and unselfish in service. They caught from him the meaning of the true teacher's vicarious life and went out by hundreds into the schools of Southeast Missouri to carry that message concretely to thousands of boys and girls. The students learned, too, that he was not narrowed to his own department but was generously interested in all school life. Was help needed on the college annual or the debating squad or in carving grotesque pumpkins for a Halloween frolic, he could always be pressed into hearty service. When the college annual was dedicated to him some years ago, the dedication page was notable in its simplicity. The students who conceived it had understood the spirit of the man they sought to honor when they wrote, under the same portrait that is reproduced in this magazine, simply, "Homer Lawson Roberts: Teacher, Friend."

To the citizens of the college community he was soon known as the friendliest member of the Faculty? He took an active part in public movements and even went frankly and fearlessly into local political campaigns. Whatever cause he championed he defended valiantly but he held no malice and expected none, and in consequence he had no enemies. The children knew him and eagerly brought him their treasures of insects and turtles, which he always appreciated even though the specimens were of no value. Old age watched eagerly for him because he always had time to linger for a kindly bit of talk. If ever a college teacher did, he fulfilled the spirit of Foss's "House by the Side of the Road," which he often quoted as he did many others of Foss's poems.

But to his colleagues it was given to know him best. We knew him as a scholar who was likely to be better informed in our own departments than were we but who spoke with modest courtesy. We knew him as a man who had met the stern imperative of life and come off victor; who could accept injustice without becoming bitter; who carried burdens for others but asked none to carry his. And above all we knew him as one who was loyal. He lived by principle. Having accepted a fact or truth he never willingly for a moment or any expediency would pretend denial of it. It was necessary often for him to be master of silence but he remained loyal to what he believed. He was loyal also to institutions. Always ready with independent judgments, he saw many defects in all of the institutions of society, but having enlisted in the cause of one, he knew no cowardice or treachery. His was the confident loyalty of the pioneer who sees in large terms because he measures by the future. No man believed more sanely in the State Teachers Association and by that token no man was more worthy to serve as a member of the executive committee during the recent period of advance. And above all he was loyal, as only big men can be, to his friends.

The teachers of Missouri have lost a leader "whose loss can yet bequeath to gain new faith in worth."

Department of Child Hygiene and School and Home Sanitation

Conducted by the Missouri Tuberculosis Association
W. McN. Miller, M. D., Editor

Beginning with October 15, 1920, the Missouri Tuberculosis Association, with the co-operation of the teachers of the schools of Missouri, is making possible a concerted state-wide movement for better health for Missouri school children through a Health Poster Contest. This contest, which is to end March 15, 1921, is an integral part of the health work of the State which will be conducted in connection with the Missouri School Health Crusade already recognized as a distinct state movement, heretofore known as the Missouri Legion of the Modern Health Crusade.

This Health Poster Contest will offer to every pupil of the public and parochial schools of Missouri an opportunity to participate in the movement and to secure a prize by preparing a poster, the object of which will be to show one way to keep one well.

One hundred fifty Teachers' College District Prizes, ten State Prizes and three Grand Prizes will be awarded.

The posters, which will be made by the children, will be of two classes: Freehand posters and cut-out posters. The freehand posters (Class 1) will include drawings, painting, and blank paper cuttings. The cut-out posters (Class 2) will include cut-out magazine advertising or other pictures, suitably mounted and labeled, on cardboard.

The freehand posters will be judged on (1) originality of design and motto, (2) coloring, (3) artistic arrangement and mounting, (4) effectiveness in putting over the idea. The cut-out posters will be judged on (1) originality of selection of pictures and choice of mottoes, (2) artistic mounting, (3) effectiveness in putting over the idea.

The pupil contestants will be classified into five school grade divisions: (1) High School, (2) seventh and eighth grades, (3) fifth and sixth grades, (4) third and fourth grades, (5) first and second grades.

These District Prizes will be awarded to each of the five Teachers' College Districts of the State: (1) Northeast Missouri, (2) Central Missouri, (3) Southeast Missouri, (4) Southwest Missouri, (5) Northeast Missouri.

The District Prizes to be awarded are: For each division of each district, a first prize of $5, a second prize of $3, a third prize of $2, for freehand posters; and a first prize of $3, a second prize of $2 and a third prize of $1, for cut-out posters.

The State Prizes to be awarded are: Ten dollars for the best poster in each division, selected from all Teachers' College Districts.

In addition to these prizes, three Grand Prizes (first, second and third) will be awarded for the first, second and third best posters, regardless of class or division. The first Grand Prize to be awarded will be $50, the second Grand Prize $30, and the third Grand Prize $20.

The rules of the contest are as follows:

1. Any pupil may enter either Class 1 or Class 2. Any school may enter one or both classes.

2. Posters shall not be smaller than nine inches by twelve inches.

3. The posters shall be sent to the Art Department of the Teachers' College in your district not later than March 15, 1921.

4. The district awards shall be made by three competent judges appointed in each district by the President of the Teachers' College.

5. The district prizewinning posters shall be sent to the Health Crusade Director, Missouri Tuberculosis Association, 706 Pontiac Building, St. Louis.

6. State prizes shall be awarded by the State judges—E. H. Wuerpel, Director St. Louis School of Fine Arts; E. G. Payne, Head of Harris Teachers' College, and A. W. Kissack, Supervisor of Art, St. Louis Public Schools.

7. All posters are to be the property of the Missouri Tuberculosis Association, to be used by them for exhibition and demonstration purposes in the State health work.

These posters will be used for exhibition purposes at the State Fair and at large health and educational meetings held throughout the State. They offer to every child in the State, whether of the public school or the parochial school, an opportunity to participate in the state-wide health movement and, incidentally, to secure a cash prize which at its maximum accumulation may be as much as $65. It is worth trying for.

This contest has been made possible by donations from public-spirited citizens interested in the work of the Missouri Tuberculosis Association.

For information pertaining to the contest, teachers and others who may be interested should address the Director of Health Crusade, Missouri Tuberculosis Association, 706 Pontiac Building, St. Louis.

BY-PRODUCT OF HEALTH EDUCATION IN THE SCHOOLS

It appears from preliminary investigation that the death-rate from tuberculosis is declining more rapidly in Missouri than in other states, despite the lack of county tuberculosis hospitals and public tuberculosis visiting nurse service which play so important a part in states where restrictions to the financial support of such institutions and such service are not imposed upon the states and counties by an antiquated state constitution.

Because of these limitations, the fight against tuberculosis in Missouri is chiefly through educational channels, through the schools; but the result achieved appear to show that full compensation for these adverse conditions has been made.

In the year 1911, the first year in which publicity was given officially to mortality statistics and, too, the year the school health educational plan of the Missouri Tuberculosis Association was inaugurated, there were 5,113 deaths from tuberculosis in the state; in the year 1919, only 3,616 deaths from this cause were registered by the State Board of Health—a diminution of 1,497 cases, nearly 30%, in eight years.

It is maintained by the Missouri Tuberculosis Association that these beneficent results have been attained through the health educational work done in the schools of the state, that any credit for effective service is due the teachers of the state and to their pupils, because of their co-operation.

Further, credit is due them almost wholly for raising the money whereby this program could be carried on. This they did through participation in the annual December sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals.

The officers of the Association feel themselves to be serving only in the capacity of trustees of the schools of Missouri, that the work is the work of the schools, that any credit for results is due to them.

The usual campaign for the sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals in the schools will be made more intensely active this year than heretofore. The seals and printed matter pertaining to the sale will be delivered in time for a well-thought-out selling campaign in the month beginning on Thanksgiving and terminating with Christmas.

It is believed that the knowledge of the splendid results achieved in the reduction of the death-rate from tuberculosis in Missouri, with concurrent results achieved in the reduction of the death-rate of other transmissible disease of childhood, will stimulate teachers and pupils to a more active campaign, and that the proceeds of the sale will greatly exceed any heretofore attained.

PENMANSHIP AND SPELLING CORRELATED

MUTUAL ADVANTAGES ARE QUICKLY OBSERVED when the PALMER METHOD PENMANSHIP LESSON IS FOLLOWED IMMEDIATELY by THE PALMER METHOD SPELLING LESSON. THE PALMER METHOD WRITING LESSON conducted by a qualified Palmer Method teaches pupils how to use muscular movement in writing words, and the PALMER METHOD SPELLING LESSON may be made the connecting link between movement drill and automatic muscular movement handwriting.

Spelling through Penmanship
Penmanship through Spelling

The Palmer Method Spellers contain lists of words which were thoroly tested by New York City teachers. The plan of presentation is modern and thoroly practical. THE WORDS IN THE PALMER METHOD SPELLERS ARE ALL in PALMER METHOD PENMANSHIP, thus serving a double purpose—FIRST, enabling pupils to visualize quickly and efficiently the words in the kind of penmanship in which they will be expected to write them. This plan increases greatly efficiency in spelling. SECOND, giving ample material for auxillary penmanship lessons, thus BRIDGING QUICKLY AND EFFECTIVELY THE CHASM BETWEEN MOVEMENT DRILL AND MOVEMENT WRITING.

Eight Spelling Books—one for each grade.

The A. N. Palmer Company is continuing its plan of teaching free, to teachers in whose classes Palmer Method Penmanship has been adopted, the mechanics and pedagogy of practical penmanship. We maintain in the field a large force of expert teachers of penmanship whose services are free to all school systems in which The Palmer Method of Business Writing has been adopted.

SILENT READERS

"They can't read print," said an old Harvard professor; 18 per cent of all reading is done silently. The real problem of the school is to teach pupils how to study.

HERE IS THE KEY TO ITS SOLUTION

The Winston Silent Readers, (Fourth to eighth grades) Wm. Dodge Lewis, Ph.D.; A. C. Rowland, Ph.D. These books, made in the class room, will teach children to read and understand. They embody the Gray, Courtis, Kelley, and Monroe tests in working out the wonderfully selected material in them.

WHAT EDUCATORS SAY

It has the virtue of not being scientific for science's sake, and in my judgment it will be well accepted by the progressive school systems of the country.
William M. Davidson, Superintendent of Schools, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

The subjects are treated in such a manner as to be of great interest to boys and girls. I feel that these books are valuable and very usable and will meet a very necessary need in our schools. Grace M. Watson, Grand Rapids, Michigan, Supervisor of School Directed Home Gardens.

It is well graded, and the story is told in a language that can be understood by boys and girls. It avoids confusion of fiction and fact and will hold the interest of the pupil by the simple statement of facts. J. H. Francis, Superintendent of Schools, Columbus, Ohio.

A splendid work coming at the right time. * * * I predict for this series of books a wide use. W. T. Hellman, Supervisor of Nature Study, Columbus, Ohio.

Nature Study series * * * is so unusually good, and so well adapted to its purpose that I unhesitatingly recommend it. * * * The Teacher's Manual is just right. A. E. Shirling, Dept. of Science, Teacher Training School, Kansas City, Missouri.
